ADN.com

Next Story >

Denali Park glacier gives up climbers' gear more than 60 years old

Walmart threatens to stop selling Alaska salmon

Published: June 28, 2013

Anchorage

From the Kodiak Daily Mirror: Wal-Mart Stores Inc. has sent suppliers a letter saying it will stop selling Alaska salmon that isn't certified by the Marine Stewardship Council. The Alaska Department of Fish and Game dropped its sponsorship of the salmon industry's MSC certification in 2010, saying it was too expensive, and processors then pulled out, also citing the program's complexity.

Wal-Mart Inc. spokesman Chris Schrader on Thursday ... confirmed that Wal-Mart is buying Alaska salmon products only from salmon sectors with specialty MSC certificates, and not from all of the state's salmon fisheries.

For those not MSC-certified: "At this point, they would need to have a (plan) in place to bridge that," Schrader said.

In its letter to sellers, Wal-Mart Inc. suggested one way to skip MSC certification: supporting public fishery improvement projects coordinated by a nongovernmental organization.

That's out of the question, said Jeff Regnart, director of ADF&G's commercial fisheries division.

Read more: Wal-Mart threatens to stop buying Alaska salmon

Back to Top < Previous Story

Former Pa. judge hired by Parnell administration OK'd lifetime gag order on children in 2011

Denali Park glacier gives up climbers' gear more than 60 years old Email Newsletters > Manage newsletter subscriptions Tablets > Apps and services for tablet devices Mobile > Apps and services for your mobile phone Social Media > Get updates via Facebook and Twitter e-Edition > Your daily paper delivered to your computer Home Delivery > Manage your home delivery account Digital Subscriptions > Manage your online subscriptions

© 2013 www.adn.com and wire service sources. All Rights Reserved. http://www.adn.com